ECONOMIC GLOBALIZATION: FOUR DIFFERENT VIEWPOINTS

“Fight corporate power and greed!” “Stop economic globalization!”

So runs the refrain of the perpetual protest crowd.

But, what exactly is “economic globalization”? and who are the primary opponents and proponents?

Our guest at next Tuesday’s General Meeting will be Nathan Stuart, Assistant Professor of Accounting at the Fisher School of Accounting, University of Florida.

Nathan will show us how the different viewpoints of economic globalization can be categorized. The results remind me of the Political Quiz that Libertarians often use to distinguish themselves from others.

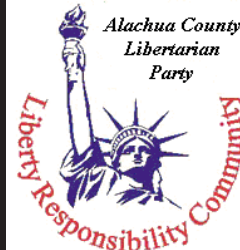

Don’t miss it!

SPEAKERS FOR THE CONVENTION

So far!

- Michael Cloud: Massachusetts Senate candidate and Libertarian speechwriter.
- Michael Badnarik: Libertarian presidential candidate
- Gary Nolan: Libertarian presidential candidate

George Elmore (A Gainesville Libertarian) is the great grandson of former Supreme Court Justice George Sutherland, who said:

"It is not the right of property which is protected but the right to property. Property, per se, has no rights but the individual has three great rights, equally sacred from arbitrary interference: the right to life, the right to his liberty and the right to his property. These three rights are so bound together as to be essentially one right. To give a man his life but deny him his liberty is to take from him all that makes life worth living. To give him his liberty but take from him the property which is the fruit and badge of his liberty is still to leave him a slave."
